Cattle slaughter for the week is down 613,000 head, down 6,000 head from a week ago, for the same period a year ago down 35,000 head, and year to date 785,000 head lower.

Cash cattle prices are slightly higher this week but likely would be higher if it wasn't for extremes in weather. Cattle in the Southwest and South are not just slowed in growth but will eventually go to slaughter bigger bonier framed and lower grade. Midwest cattle from Nebraska into the northern Plains and across the Midwest have so far been ok, and the major reason for the spread in prices between the Southwest and Midwest

Extreme heat in the Southwest, heat and humidity in Plains, rains in the Northeastern states and high temperatures in the South all have had affects to cattle, how and what consumers are eating and in some areas both. Now heavy drenching rains are turning areas of the country into flood zones.

August Live Cattle on Friday settled at $180.90. The 5 day negotiated steer price is $185.95.

Monday, August 7, 2023 is first notice day.

For the week, there were minor fluctuations on daily pork prices but little change on the 5 day average. Slaughter for the week is down 54,000 head for the week as packers backed down kill on Friday and Saturday. But, for the year, the year to date slaughter is up 3.9% or 951,000 head more for the same period in in 2022. By September, slaughter will likely be over 1,00,000 head.
