Boxed beef prices are dropping but with cash cattle prices down, packer margins remain excellent. The reality, when packers are making as much as they are now, they are going to kill as many cattle as possible. If Northern and Midwest cattle weren't as big as they are now, prices would be higher. Heavy cattle slow chain speed and with as much meat selling as trimmings and ground beef, there is enough beef.

Going into the end of the year, it is likely to see packers pay higher prices but only for cattle that meet the weights packers want. For overweight cattle, Yield Grade 4's and 5's, the feedlots won't benefit from higher prices, just the opposite and will likely see wider and deeper discounts. It obviously is beginning to happen. Thursday, cattle in lowa/Minnesota weighing 1,575 - 1,625 sold from $103.00 to $104.00. Discounts into December could be $15.00 or more depending how fast the heavy cattle take to clean up.

Cattle feedlots holding heavy cattle are doing a disservice to themselves and to feedlots moving cattle lighter. The restaurant trade can use heavy cattle but right now, there is more concern how many restaurants can remain open versus what they could use under normal times. Japan takes fat heavy cattle but but over the past years because of new trade agreements with Brazil and Japan a member of the Trans Pacific Partnership, sales have dropped and will likely drop more over time.

Packers are not only selling beef lower but dumping it. It may mean packers have fewer contracts for beef and are using daily market to clean up what isn't needed for contracted beef. Beef exports have cancellations week after week, and retailers that contracted beef could cancel loads or may be ordering fewer loads.

_____

Beef export net sales are pathetic. Only 3000 metric tonnes for 2020 and 6400 metric tonnes for 2021.

With the cheap US Dollar, US beef should be flying out the door.

For the week the pork cutout was up $1.54 Both loins and hams were up for the week but overall pork movement has been down on daily market. Pork is selling but in US markets is competing with cheaper ground beef and chicken.

Exports were good this week and they should be. The US Dollar makes buying US pork a bargain. Mexico is the best buyer week after week but US pork market needs to see China come in with big orders, and South Korea and Japan buy more.

The CME pork and hog market has been stagnant over the past week. For the week, the CME Pork Index was off just 37 cents and Lean Hog Index was 6 cents higher compared to a week ago.

Futures have been dropping on expectations of larger global supplies as China will surpass levels pre-African Swine Fever in January and increasing throughout 2021, Brazil is expected to have over 4% more hogs. Ukraine, Argentina and the European Union are expected to see increasing hog numbers. Add in more beef and poultry in 2021 and unless there is a breakout in ASF, the outlook looks bleak for any sustained rallies.
